

What are your top sex priorities?

Glamour's panelists confess their three bedroom musts (pay attention, guys!).

Glamour's panelists grin and bare their boudoir to-dos. From left: Rudolph, Sweeney, Gurwitch, Farr and Sterling.

Annabelle Gurwitch, former cohost of TBS's Dinner & a Movie, grills our very candid group: Julia Sweeney, actress and comedian; Maya Rudolph, comedian, Saturday Night Live; Mindy Sterling, who plays Frau Farbissina in Austin Powers in Goldmember; Diane Farr, actress and author of The Girl Code: The Secret Language of Single Women (Little, Brown). Here goes!

Annabelle Gurwitch: Every woman wants to feel satisfied in bed. But to get what you want, you have to know what you want. Diane, what are your top sex priorities? You were on MTV's Loveline for two years.

Diane Farr: Right, I played a sex therapist.

AG: So let's hear your sexual wish list.

Diane Farr: The most important thing to me is kissing. Second is cuddling. I'm a big sucker for cuddling.

Julia Sweeney: Me too.

Mindy Sterling: Yes, because you know they like you. If they don't like you—if they just want to have sex with you—it's really hard for them to want to cuddle you.

AG: So a kiss and a cuddle for Diane.

DF: Right, and the third-priority is totally a single girl's thing: condoms. If a guy pouts about wearing one, or if he can't hold an erection with it, or if the second he gets it on we have to have "boy" sex—like, fast and furious—it ruins it for me. So he has to have no problems with a condom.

Maya Rudolph: It's amazing, the whining.

DF: Thus the reason I date 25-year-olds: They have no issues. At all. They could be hard 24 hours a day.

JS: OK, I wrote my list down, but mine are all priorities for me—not what I want from a guy. Number one is: I can't make fat jokes or derogatory comments about my body. I just have to say to myself, "I have the most beautiful body," and just feel it and own it, or else why am I having sex?

MS: I love it!

Julia Sweeney: Next, I want to enjoy the feeling of desire instead of focusing on the orgasm.

MS: Ooh, that's a good one.

JS: That's only good if you're easily orgasmic, which I fortunately happen to be.

AG: OK, now we know, girls: Julia Sweeney is easily orgasmic.

JS: And multiple!

AG: Does that mean, like, you get into a cab, and if the seat vibrates....

JS: No, but almost.

MS: Wow!

JS: And lastly—this is the hardest one—no fantasies. I've never really had sex with somebody where part of it wasn't fantasy.

DF: Neither have I.

MS: But why is that so bad?

JS: It's not that it's bad. But sex should be about being completely in the moment with that person and not letting your own mental porno films start playing.

AG: All right, Mindy, what are you thinking?

MS: Well, to be honest, I have no interest in sex right now. Part of it is that I'm a mom, and I also have a hard time relaxing. So my first priority—this is going to sound so schmaltzy—is to rekindle my desire.

DF: That's a great one!

MS: The second thing is being massaged—that gets me in the mood.

AG: I love that too, but does your husband ever get tired of giving massages?

MS: No, because he knows he's probably going to get some! A third priority is to laugh. I love to laugh after sex. Sex is funny to me. We just lie there and giggle.

All: Ha!

AG: OK, we all just laughed. Did anyone come? Julia?

JS: It shows intimacy if you can laugh with someone.

AG: Maya, what's on your list?

Maya Rudolph: My first priority is a man who makes me feel like a woman—who's like, "You are beautiful."

DF: It's the idea of being revered.

MR: Well, more that they appreciate women—your curves, your skin, your boobies, everything [sigh]. And I want someone who's really comfortable with sex. I'm a comedian, so it's really hard to just say "I want this" or "I like that" and be honest and not laugh about it. So being with a guy who's honest about sex and feels really confident is what I'm into.

AG: Attention: Maya Rudolph is looking for a strong, confident man.
